

Professionals Without Parachutes

building successes together

Working with students with FASD can be very challenging. Taking time to acknowledge some of our negative feelings and to make efforts to shift them may help us move forward. The words of other teachers like you highlight the important role you play in the lives of students with FASD.

